"HOOK" LEE SHOT.

Saloonist Hagerty First Refused to Sell Him Liquor on Sunday.

Yesterday afternoon "Hook" Lee and Patrick Collins went to Patrick Hagerty's saloon at the corner of Blake and Washington streets and tried to get liquor. Hagerty was in a rear room, which he used as a sleeping apartment. When they went to the side door opening into this room, Hagerty opened the door slightly and told them that he was not selling anything on Sunday. They insisted upon being served and he ordered them away, shutting and locking the door. This angered the men and they threw their weight against the door and broke it. Lee was shot by one of the men. It took effect in the fleshy part of Lee's leg.

Lee went to Dr. Elmsbless and had his wound dressed, but refused to tell how he was hurt. The bullet, from a 28 caliber revolver, passed through the thigh. Hagerty was arrested last night and charged with plain assault and battery. Lee and Collins will be arrested. Lee was shot by one of the men. It took effect in the fleshy part of Lee's leg.

OUT FOR A "GOOD TIME."

A Crowd That Amused Itself by Promiscuous Shooting.

Patrick Griffin was arrested yesterday for shooting inside the city limits, and the police are searching for a man by the name of Fitzgerald, who is wanted for shooting with intent to kill. The two men, John Callahan and several others started out Saturday night to have a "good time." At 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning they found themselves on Fayette street, and all were in bad humor. Fitzgerald handed a revolver to Griffin and the latter fired it, just to see if it was loaded. A little further along the whole crowd got mixed up in a row and began fighting. It is said that Fitzgerald shot at Callahan and missed him. He was observed before he could fire again. Griffin says he was in fun, but Callahan insists that Fitzgerald tried to shoot him.

Says Her Guest Robbed Her.

Yesterday morning Patrolmen Slate and Cronan were called into the house kept by Pearl Smith, a colored woman, at 22 West Chesapeake street. Alice Haddock, an inmate of the house, charged that William H. Connors, a colored man claiming New York as his home, had robbed her of $31. She was in the house at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and met Connors, whom she invited to go to the house with her. At 6:30 o'clock, she claims, she missed the money. Connors denied having the money and the police sent the three people to the police station on a common charge.

NO CUT IN THEIR WAGES

MR. MASON HAS HEARD NO SUCH PROPOSITION AS TO EMPLOYEES.

Conductors "Knocking Down" Extra Two Cents—Service Not Sufficient Yesterday to Accommodate People.

There was some uneasiness among street-car employees yesterday lest their wages be cut to meet the reduction in car fares. It is recalled that while the present law was pending in the Legislature the company, by implication, threatened that a reduction in wages would have to be made if the revenue was reduced, falling back on the old cry that labor must be the first to suffer. A number of employees were so wrought up over this threat that they went to the Statehouse and lobbied against the bill. Yesterday this talk was revived, and it was rumored that the company had notified employees that their wages were to be cut. A. L. Mason, president of the company, expressed some surprise when the rumor was repeated to him, and said that he had not even heard such a proposition.

"You are the first person to mention such a thing to me," said President Mason.

"Are employees of your road still instructed to collect 5-cent fares except when passengers demand to ride for three?" he was asked.

"I don't care to add anything to what has already been said on that subject," replied he.

He was informed that some passengers complained that they did not get the proper change without insisting on it, but reiterated his first reply that he did not care to add anything.

Conductors on many of the street-car lines yesterday continued to hold up for the old illegal 5-cent fare passengers who did not have the necessary pennies to make their own change, or who did not care to risk some insulting reply by asking for it. The conductors on many of the roads were exceedingly heavy and until a late hour town corners were crowded with persons waiting to transfer. The immense traffic yesterday was believed by many to be an earnest of what the company may expect this way of increasing its revenue.

It was held that the 5-cent law is valid, and does much to refute the wall of officials that the company would starve. Indignation was expressed at a good many passengers at the unwillingness of some conductors to comply with the law and their determination to collect the 5-cent fare when possible. Some passengers openly asserted that the conductors were trying to get the extra pennies. This assertion was borne out, in one case, at least, by the action of an employee. The wife of a newspaper man was on a North Indianapolis car. At Twelfth street she was the only passenger who did not alight. As the last one descended the motorman opened the door at his end of the car and called out to the conductor, "Did any of them leave you 2 cents?"

"Yes, they're all here. It ain't the working people who kick for 3-cent fares; it's the rich. These rich people are all here."

"That's what they are," said the motorman, as he turned on the current and changed his mind. He said that he expected the conductor to divide the profits of the trip, and got mad when he found there was none.

The same lady had another experience this morning as she was boarding the car. Her husband, who was a lawyer, was with her. She boarded the car by her girl Kate, fresh from Germany. She asked the conductor for 2 cents, but he had no pennies. The conductor stood but two or three feet from the seat of the woman, and she felt very uncomfortable. She said she had a change for another ride, but the lady with the smile. She handed the silver dollar to the conductor, who rang up two fares and turned on his heel, ignoring the woman. The man who was with her, however, due her. She blushed at the snub, but did not call the conductor to time, as he declared that the man who was with her returned the change to the husband he was dragged into court for his discourtesy.

Some passengers, however, are confirmed in the habit of paying a nickel that they forget the new order of things. A man and his wife were on a College-avenue car yesterday. The man paid a nickel, and the woman a penny in payment of both fares. A lady sitting beside him saw the nickel and gave him a look.

"Oh, dear me," she exclaimed. "I forgot, and gave him a nickel." She blushed furiously when her neighbors smiled.

STUPID ROAD MANAGEMENT.

Street-Car Company Had Golden Chances for Money Making.

For several hours yesterday the Street-Car Company was unable to handle its traffic, and it had not been for stupid road management. The profits of the road have been much more than they were. The day was so bright and clear that everybody in town wanted to get out for an airing, and the 3-cent fare inducements prompted great numbers who would otherwise have walked a few blocks to the cars. Between 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock in the morning the cars bound for downtown were loaded to the handrails, and thousands of people who wanted to take the cars were crowded out. The cars were crowded to the handrails, and thousands of people who wanted to take the cars were crowded out. The cars were crowded to the handrails, and thousands of people who wanted to take the cars were crowded out.

The traffic to Crown Hill was heavy yesterday, and the cars were crowded to the handrails. The cars were crowded to the handrails, and thousands of people who wanted to take the cars were crowded out. The cars were crowded to the handrails, and thousands of people who wanted to take the cars were crowded out.

The Indianapolis street-car company's determination not to obey the law allowing a charge only five cents for a single fare is likely to bring not only a fine from the federal courts, but also the State of Indiana and the federal courts. The company applied for an injunction to a state court, but to a federal court it is a law suit.

The State Attorney General Ketchum proposes to deny the jurisdiction of the Federal Court on the ground that if writ of injunction were granted it would have to be issued practically against the State of Indiana, the person of its attorney general, who will defend the suit and who is trying to enforce the laws passed by the Legislature. The company's position is a novel one and will have wide interest. The course taken by the company is a novel one and will have wide interest. The course taken by the company is a novel one and will have wide interest.

SHEA A TROLLEY VICTIM.

Struck by a Motor Car and Will Probably Die.

John Shea, an engineer employed at Kingman's packing house, was probably fatally injured yesterday evening. He lives at No. 59 Deloss street, and started home, taking an English-avenue car. He alighted at Olive street and started to cross the street to go north to Deloss street. He was struck by a motor car and was thrown from the track and he was not run over, but he received a blow on the head which may cause death. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to his home. It was found that he was injured on the head. An ambulance was called to remove him to St. Vincent's Hospital. Dr. Oliver found that Shea was badly injured and he was taken to the hospital for further examination at the hospital that he could not recover.

He has a wife and several small children. The accident was not witnessed by any disinterested person so far as can be learned. The motorman of the car which struck Shea was E. Woodruff. He says he was driving the car on the English-avenue car. P. J. Riley was the conductor. Olive street
